Trainer, Auditor & Consultant for Food Safety & Quality Management Systems

With 20 years' experience in food production quality assurance, McLeskey Consulting, Inc. has acquired a wide range of knowledge to advise you in improving your operation. That knowledge and experience, paired with active involvement to stay abreast of changes in the food industry, makes us a powerful ally. We know the common stumbling blocks in the food production industry. As your partner, we'll share that knowledge, empowering you to reach higher standards while minimizing disruption to your operation.

A Comprehensive Consulting Strategy:

Helping Farms, Agriculture Business, and Food Companies Grow & Succeed

From the family farm to the food processing plant and beyond, constant change and improvement are necessary for success in the business of food production. Our comprehensive strategies look at specific, targeted improvements that will increase safety, efficiency, and quality in your organization as a whole. We'll work with you to:

- Streamline your operation for greater efficiency and supply chain harmonization.
- Evaluate your procedures against industry standards, and then work with you to improve your procedures to meet or exceed those standards.
- Help you prepare for, and support you on-site during the audits and certification schemes that will expand your customer base.
- Perform first, second, and third party audits.

McLeskey Consulting, Inc. offers comprehensive training, auditing, and consulting services for the food production industry. We work in every stage of food production: farms, processing facilities, distribution centers, restaurants, and management offices.

Our review and analysis will provide actionable information about your processes and procedures, including necessary steps to meet the accreditation standards your customers require.
